Bios:

Bryan Mabee is Senior Lecturer in International Politics at Queen Mary, University of London. His research is focused on the interrelationships of war, security and society, with an empirical emphasis on the United States. He has published two books – The Globalization of Security: State Power, Security Provision and Legitimacy and Understanding American Power: The Changing World of US Foreign Policy – a co-edited volume on private violence in history, and a number of articles on US security, historical sociology and piracy and seaborne violence. His current research is concentrated on analytic approaches to and the history of ‘liberal’ militarism, including an examination of C. Wright Mills’ explorations of militarism in the Cold War.

Srdjan Vucetic is Associate Professor at the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs, University of Ottawa, Canada. His research interests revolve around United States foreign and defence policy and international security. He has published The Anglosphere: A Genealogy of a Racialized Identity in International Relations, two edited and co-edited special issues and a number of articles and book chapters. Currently he is studying the global politics of the F-35, a.k.a. the Joint Strike Fighter.
